2.1 The 30th Congress of the International Geographical Union: <Transforming Societies: A Global Perspective>, 15-20 August 2004, Glasgow, UK.

Sponsored by the RGS-IBG Post-Socialist Geographies Research Group.

This themed session aims to provide an interdisciplinary forum in which to explore key trends characterising transforming societies in the wake of regime change. It is intended that the session move beyond the regional constraints of post-socialist change with its immediate focus on eastern Europe and Russia in order to draw on the insights gained from work carried out in other world regions.

Themes may include issues of governance (power structures, corporatism, disempowerment, new empowerment, interest representation), inequality (social, socio-economic, gender), identity (social, cultural and territorial), and uneven development (marginalization, migration).

For those interested in taking part in the sessions, please forward abstracts (250 words max) to either Tassilo Herrschel (t.a.herrschel@wmin.ac.uk) or Jonathan Oldfield (J.D.Oldfield@bham.ac.uk) by 30th November 2003.

Further information (accommodation etc.) concerning the Congress can be obtained from the official website: <http://www.meetingmakers.co.uk/IGC-UK2004>

2.2 EURESCO Conference <Vertical Markets and Cooperative Hierarchies: The Role of Cooperatives in the International Agri-Food Industry>, Chania, Crete, Greece, 3 - 7 September 2004

Agricultural cooperatives exist in most agro-food industries and in most countries. A large share of the markets for agricultural commodities is handled by cooperatives, and some firms are very large. During the last decade or so, many cooperatives have undergone notable organizational changes. Often hybrid forms have been created, as the cooperatives have adopted characteristics of IOFs (investor-owned firms). At the same time, some cooperatives keep to their roots, remaining collectively organized and monitored. Which are the driving forces behind these diverging trends? Which solutions do the various types of cooperative chose when it comes to ownership and financing, management and control, product and market strategies, etc? What will agricultural cooperatives look like in the years to come, and why so?

Four topics are to be covered:

- Change Patterns in the Agricultural Cooperatives Sector.
- Organisational Principles for Cooperative Enterprises. Even a hasty look at present-day cooperatives reveals that considerable changes are taking place as to
- Supply Chain Management.
- Marketing Strategies and Organisational Set-up.

2.4 19th Annual Employment Research Unit Conference "Management, Work and Organization in Postsocialist Societies", September 8-9, 2004, Cardiff Business School, Cardiff University

The dramatic economic and political changes in postsocialist societies have been well documented in academic and media sources. Perhaps oddly, however, the crucial aspects of management change, organizational transformation and employee relations have often been omitted. We know little about how former state owned enterprises have attempted to re-orient themselves towards 'free' markets and how managers and employees have dealt with this new era. This conference aims to address this problem by providing an open environment in which all areas of economic transformation after state socialism can be discussed in a area-focussed, multi-disciplinary fashion.

Papers are invited on all aspects of work and employment, industrial relations, and management transformations in China, the former Soviet Union,

Eastern Europe and other former socialist countries. Contributions towards theoretical development will also be encouraged. Keynote speakers will address the future of management research into postsocialist societies.

Accepted papers will be allocated one of the following streams:

- Transforming Ownership and Management Structures
- Organizational Forms and Inter-organizational Relationships
- Labour Market Changes and Reforming Enterprise Welfare
- Industrial and Labour Relations
- The Realities of Work
- Gender and Work
- Informal or 'Shadow' Economy
- Theorizing Postsocialist Management

There will also be a doctoral stream, and papers from PhD students are especially welcome.

Publications: The organisation anticipate the publication of some of the articles from the conference in a Special Issue of International Journal of Human Resource Management.

Conference submission: An abstract of 500 words should be submitted by 31 March 2004. Authors of accepted abstracts will be notified in April/May. Deadlines for full text of accepted papers is 31 July 2004.

2.5 The Third International Conference on International Business in Transition Economies, September 9-11, 2004, Riga- Latvia.

Celebrating its 10th Anniversary, Stockholm School of Economics in Riga will host The 3rd International Conference "International Business in Transition Economies" on September 9-11, 2004, in the capital of Latvia Riga. As the first two, the 3rd Conference invites papers addressing the key questions of International Business in the transforming economies of Eastern and Central Europe:

- The Changing Institutional, Industrial and Cultural Context of the CEE Economies: Barriers and Opportunities for International Business
- International Trade, Production and Competitiveness of the CEE Countries - Internationalization of Companies and International Marketing in the Transforming Economies
- International Management, Organizational Learning and Change in the Transforming Economies

Conference Theme: International Entrepreneurship, Innovation and Competitiveness in The Transforming (CEE) and Enlarging Europe

The Year 2004 is a historic year for the European Continent as ten new countries are joining the European Union. The European integration has already affected the CEE and other firms in many important ways. Still, there are many pressing questions in need of answers. Like the two previous conferences, we hope, this Conference will also attract a significant number of scholars who will share their ideas and present research findings on these and related issues.

The deadline for extended abstracts is May 1st, 2004, while complete papers should be submitted by August 10. The papers will be accepted based on the review of the extended abstracts. The authors will be notified about the acceptance/rejection by May 30, 2004. Scholars - not able to meet the deadline for the submission of abstracts, but interested in attending the Conference- are kindly encouraged to send an email to the organizers in order to discuss the deadline extension.

The first two Conferences have resulted in the special issues of international journals such as Journal of East-West Business (JEB), Transformation in Business and Economics (TBE) and Management International Review (in progress). Currently, we are engaged in discussions with several high level international journals. Thus, the Conference journal and other publishing opportunities will be announced very soon.

2.7 9th International Metropolis Conference "Managing Migration and Migrant Communities: Views from Sending Countries in Post-socialist Europe and Central Asia", 27 September – 1 October 2004, Geneva, Switzerland. Organisation: COMPAS (Centre on Migration, Policy and Development), University of Oxford, UK.

The next annual conference of Metropolis – the international forum for research and policy on migration issues – will be convened later this year in Geneva (see <http://www.metropolis2004.ch>). As with previous Metropolis conferences, this promises to be a significant event bringing together several hundred policy-makers, civil servants at all levels of government, and leading academics from around the world.

Key to every annual Metropolis conference are the workshops, where individuals have the opportunity to meet in smaller groups, hear the latest research findings and discuss policy developments across a range of contexts. We write to invite you to make a brief presentation at a Workshop that we are organizing at the conference, described on the following page. Among governments in both migrant-sending and migrant-receiving countries, international agencies and research institutions, we have recently witnessed an extraordinary growth of interest in ways of managing migration for development, poverty reduction and post-conflict reconstruction. Given the range of Metropolis participants (especially set amongst the international agencies located in Geneva), this Workshop will likely attract a highly knowledgeable set of participants who will make for a significant and stimulating discussion.

This workshop will gather together research and policy experts working on post-socialist countries in Central and Eastern Europe, and Central Asia. They will examine the agency of central and particularly local governments whose migration and development strategies involve not only raising funds among the diasporas but also managing and creating migration flows. This workshop will study development policies and their implementation, as affected by, or impacting upon, international migration. The focus will be on the successes and failures of home countries in capturing the developmental potential of either temporary or permanent migration.

The principal aim is to delineate possibilities for integrative management which inserts a development perspective into migration policies and strengthens post-socialist contexts as conducive for the implementation of sustainable development strategies. This will include an examination of country and region specific contexts as well as of overall tendencies in the post-socialist democratic transition in view of Europeanisation and globalisation processes.

Sending countries' policies and research on migration have rarely been linked to developmental processes in these countries. A number of obstacles prevent these links and they will be discussed in the context of a wide range of socio-economic and political transformations. To name but a few the lack of promising economic development, uneven democratisation, stifling elites and weak non-governmental bodies have prevented positive impacts on migration for development. It remains unclear how do specific logics of post-socialist transformations embody a vision of integrating migration and development. How have the governmental and non-governmental institutions in the home country hindered or created both intended and unintended financial, socio-economic and political capital and knowledge that could mobilise migrants for home country development?

Specific questions will also address the ways in which governments deal with development and migration issues in the course of democratisation, liberalisation of markets, peace or conflict processes, economic and political decentralisation; particular rural-urban dynamics, the growing feminisation of migration, (the possibility of) increased return migrations, and the multiple effects of brain drain. Particular attention will be paid to migration legislation, local and national economic reforms and business programs, labour exchange programs, social policies, regional and cross-border cooperation, as well as to strategies employed by governments and NGOs as catalysts in the re-involvement of temporary migrants and émigrés through integration in virtual or face-to-face networks.

2.13 The 9th International Conference on Global Business and Economic Development Management Challenges in Times of Global Change and Uncertainty, May 25-28, 2005

Seoul, Korea. Organisation: The Center for International Business, School of Business, Montclair State University, New Jersey, USA and Hanyang University, Seoul, Korea.

Uncertainty is one of the most powerful forces shaping today's business environment. As this environment unfolds, traditional approaches to globalization built on multilateral collaboration are being transformed at the local, national, and regional levels. In this context, public and private institutions and businesses are faced with the challenge of developing policies and programs to facilitate the flow of investment, trade and resources. Asia, which is home to more than half of the world's population, has emerged as a competitive region in accelerating the diffusion of new technologies and entrepreneurship and knowledge-based businesses are in the threshold of becoming global players. To examine how uncertainty affects both Asia and the rest of the global community, the 9th International Conference invites research papers, case studies, and panel sessions on the following issues:

Global Business & Regional Issues (include: Challenges of the Expanded European Union; Transitional Economies: Challenges & Opportunities; Market Reforms on Central Asian & Russian Economies; China and other Emerging Markets)

FDI, Financial Markets & Entrepreneurship:
Emerging Technologies & New Delivery Systems:

2.14 VII ICCEES World Congress "Europe – Our common Home?" Berlin July 25th – 30th 2005

Organisation International Council for Central and East European Studies.

The Congress will take place at the Humboldt Universität, in the centre of the city. The opening and closing ceremonies will be held at the Haus der Kulturen der Welt/Kongresshalle (House of World Cultures/ Congress Hall) located in a beautiful park, the Tiergarten. The Haus der Kulturen der Welt/Kongresshalle can easily be reached by public transport. The local organiser is the Deutsche Gesellschaft für Osteuropakunde (German Association for Eastern European Studies).

The International Programme Committee (IPC) for the VII World Congress invites all interested persons to submit proposals for panels, papers and roundtables which show results of new research in all fields and disciplines in the study of Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union.

The theme of the congress is "Europe – Our common Home?". Some 15 years after the change of regime in the countries of Central and East Europe, the IPC wants to offer an opportunity to examine the state of the continent concerning all aspects of European integration processes. It takes into regard that some countries from the former Eastern Block will already have joined the European Union. How far has the idea of a common home Europe already been realised?

Which are the new common features and values within Europe, and where are new divides?

These notes for conference participants are meant to give some indications for their presentations at the congress. They do not exclude any theme or field of research which fits into the main theme of the congress. Everyone should feel invited to contribute with a presentation of his or her research results to the work of the congress which will offer a forum for a broad range of themes and of disciplines.

Fields of research: Baltic States, Caucasian States, Central Asia, Cultural Studies, Economy, European Integration Processes, Gender Issues, Geography, History, Jewish Studies, Language/Linguistics, Law, Literature, Pedagogical Sciences, Politics, International Relations, Security, Religion and Philosophy, Sociology, South-East Europe.

Conditions for proposals?

1. All proposals have to be of an academic character.
 2. All proposals have to be approved by the IPC. Only approved papers will be part of the official congress programme.
 3. Proposals for panels include usually a chair, up to three speakers and a discussant.
 4. Panels must have an international composition. There will be no panels with participants from one country only.
 5. The panels last for 90 minutes. It is highly recommended that no speaker will have more than 15 minutes for his or her presentation.
 6. Whoever proposes a panel is expected to obtain the prior approval of all panelists he or she wishes to propose. No one may be proposed without his/her knowledge and consent.
 7. No person may propose more than one panel. No person may participate in more than two panels.
 8. Individual papers may be included in the congress programme by decision of the IPC. They may be presented in special sessions, attached to existing panels or accepted as posters.
 9. The IPC has the right to attach individual papers to panels. The chair will be asked to allow the speakers of such attached papers 5 minutes to present their paper from the floor.
 10. There will be an opportunity to display and present posters in a designated area at the conference venue. Proponents of individual papers may indicate that they are interested in presenting a poster.
 11. The official congress languages are English, Russian, German and French. All parts of the programme must be in one of these languages. The congress organisation will not provide translation (except for the opening and closing ceremonies where simultaneous translation between English, Russian and German will be available).
 12. The congress administration language is English. All correspondence, proposals etc. have to be in English. During the congress, there will be stewards around with knowledge of the congress languages.
- Procedure for proposing papers.

1. Proposals may be sent in in electronic form only. Proposals have to be submitted in English, regardless of the language of the panels during the congress. The address is <http://www.iccees2005.de>. Inquiries concerning registration formalities should be made to info@iccees2005.de.

2. The deadline for proposals is February 29th, 2004. However, proponents are asked to send in their proposals as early as possible.

3. The IPC will meet in spring 2004, decide about all proposals and compose the final programme.

4. By summer 2004, all proponents whose papers were accepted, will be informed about the decision of the IPC. They will get official letters of invitation which may serve for getting funds and obtaining visa.

5. For all accepted papers, an abstract in English has to be sent in by February 28th, 2005. The abstract shall not exceed one page. All abstracts will be published in an abstract-book which all participants will receive when they register. No paper without abstract can be part of the official programme.

6. Abstracts will be printed in the form in which they are sent in. There will be no correction or change. Proponents will have to take care that their abstracts are in correct English.

7. Each abstract must indicate the language in which the paper will be presented.

8. Each abstract has to contain an email-address so that the proponent may be easily contacted.

9. All accepted papers are eligible for publication in the congress proceedings. The decision whether a paper can be published will be made by the editor of the congress proceedings.

Please notice that all participants are expected to register officially and to pay the registration fee. Additionally, they have to cover all their own costs for travel, accommodation and meals. For registration fees, see the attached list.

The organisation will try to obtain a certain number of travel grants for participants from Central and East European countries. If you are interested in such a grant, please tick the respective box in the electronic registration form ("travel grants") and register in advance. The grants will only be for participants from Eastern Europe who present a paper at the conference. They probably should not be older than 35 years and have to be working at a university/ have taken a doctor's degree. These last named conditions for grants might change, i.e. the registration is only provisional. However, we will have information about the availability of such grants (which will be limited in number, anyway) not earlier than in late 2004/beginning of 2005.

There will be organised tours offered for the days before and after the congress. You will get a list of tours of one or more days with the official programmes. These tours are not part of the congress programme, but will be organised by the Congress Agency CTW. With the list of the tours, you will receive a price list for these tours.

3. FELLOWSHIPS, COMPETITIONS AND OTHER ISSUES

3.1 CEEL Program In Adaptive Economic Dynamics. Fifth Trento Summer School Intensive Course In Institutional Economics, June 28 - July 9, 2004.

The relationship between institutions and economic analysis is a two-way street. In one direction, institutions serve as guides or constraints that theory must take into account; in the other direction, economic theory provides a set of tools that can help explain the nature and origins of social institutions. This course will travel in both directions, and occasionally turn down some scenic side roads. The goal of this year's intensive course is to provide a wide and thorough survey of the place of institutions in economics.

TOPICS: Here are some of the topics: - What are institutions? - The "Old" and the "New" Institutionalism - Institutions and economic rationality - Complexity, spontaneous order, and economic evolution - Organizations and institutions - Modularity, near-decomposability, and the design of institutions - Institutions and economic growth - Institutions in economic history.

PROGRAM DETAILS: The course will be taught by Richard Langlois of the University of Connecticut. Guest lecturers include Peyton Young of Johns Hopkins University; Nicolaas J. Vriend of Queen Mary's College, University of London; Scott E. Page of the University of Michigan; Meir Kohn of Dartmouth College; Axel Leijonhufvud of UCLA and the University of Trento; Ugo Pagano of the University of Siena; and Enrico Zaninotto of the University of Trento. The course will take the form of morning lectures by the principal instructor and some of the guest speakers. In the afternoons, other prominent guest speakers will introduce students to cutting-edge approaches to the economics of organization, including evolutionary game theory, experimental economics, and agent-based simulation.

APPLICATION PROCEDURE: Interested graduate students and post-docs are encouraged to apply by submitting a curriculum vitae, a two-page essay describing their interest and background in institutional economics. Applicants should also submit a course transcript from their PhD program, including advanced examinations passed, and two letters of recommendation. Applications are due by May 1, 2004. We encourage electronic submissions: <http://www-ceel.economia.unitn.it> Admissions decisions will be made and announced by 26 May 2004. All applicants will be informed by e-mail about the results.

LOCATION: The school will be held at Sardagna (Trento, Italy), a beautiful retreat, accessed by cable car, in the Dolomite Mountains. All student participants are asked to stay for the entire duration of the conference. Food and accommodation at the conference will be completely covered (participants will have to cover travel to the conference).
