1.1 MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear EACES members,

I hope that the December issue of the EACES newsletter will find you in good mood and that you personally can look back at a happy and successful year 2018.

The highlight of this year from the perspective of our association – as it is the case with every even-numbered year – certainly was our biannual conference on which the last newsletter reported extensively. Thanks again to all who contributed to this conference.

This issue looks ahead and contains the call for papers for the XX. International Academic Conference on Economic and Social Development, 9-12 April 2019, in Moscow.

This conference, hosted by the Higher School of Economics, regularly attracts a large number of top researchers from all over the world. Next year's conference being the XX. conference in this series – and therefore marking an anniversary – will certainly be no exception.

I sincerely hope to see you during this conference and/or at any other occasion during the next year. And as I will continue to remind all EACES members: Should you have any suggestion concerning the activities of our association, do not hesitate to let me know.

With my best wishes for a peaceful and merry Christmas season and a Happy New Year!

Jürgen Jerger, EACES President

2. CALL FOR PAPERS

20th April International Academic Conference on Economic and Social Development

April 9-12, 2019, Moscow

National Research University Higher School of Economics (HSE)

The Conference will bring together senior Russian government officials, including representatives of the Presidential Executive Office, the Ministry of Economic Development of the Russian Federation, high-level experts of the World Bank, the OECD, large national and global companies, and leading academics.

Participants are invited to submit extended abstracts of their papers for presentation at the Conference's sessions. Proposals must be submitted through HSE's online system at <https://conf.hse.ru/en/> by November 12, 2018. The Programme Committee will then send notifications on the acceptance of proposals by January 25, 2019, after considering the results of reviews carried out by independent experts. The Programme Committee also welcomes proposals from groups of potential participants wishing to present their papers during one session.

Papers included in the programme will have the opportunity of being published in leading Russian journals dedicated to economics, sociology, management, public administration, etc. (subject to additional reviews by the editorial board of a given journal). These journals are either cited in the Scopus and WoS databases or are included in the list published by the Russian Higher Attestation Commission.

Online registration to attend the Conference will be open until March 25, 2019 at <https://conf.hse.ru/en/>.

The Conference's working languages are Russian and English.

More information about the conferences can be viewed here <https://conf.hse.ru/en/2019/about>

3. JOURNALS

Note: With the September 2018 issue of the EACES newsletter, we discontinued the copy-paste of the tables of content of a multitude of journals in the area of comparative economics. There was no single negative response on this change, so our impression is that this might indeed have been a good idea.

We keep reminding you, however, of the two journals that are more closely linked EACES. Any suggestions from members concerning this section in future issues are welcome.

The European Journal of Comparative Economics is published by the European Association for Comparative Economic Studies (EACES) and the Università Carlo Cattaneo – LIUC as an open access e-journal. You can browse the and download the contents for free at <http://eaces.liuc.it>.

Economic Systems is published on behalf of the Leibniz Institute for East and Southeast European Studies in collaboration with EACES. You can browse the contents for free and download them subject to your or your institution's subscription at <https://www.journals.elsevier.com/economic-systems/>.
